CELEBRATING BLACK STAFF AT THE SFMTA

Michele Brewster
Proof of Payment (POP) Supervisor, Investigator, Security, Investigations and Enforcement Streets Division

What does it mean to be a Black professional in transportation?

To be a Black professional in transportation holds a unique sentiment for me. I began my delve into transit in December 1999 with the establishment of Proof of Payment (POP) at the SFMTA. I was a part of a 19-member class that included 3 African American females, of which I was one.

In 2007, I proudly reached another trailblazing moment as the first African American female supervisor for POP. I hold these accomplishments as a privilege to the ongoing strides made in transportation, always remembering that I stand on the shoulders of great women like Maya Angelou and Rosa Parks who began the journey so that I could hold a place.
What does it mean to be a Black professional in transportation?

Being a Black professional in a large metropolitan transportation agency, comes with its own challenging, yet humbling and gratifying experiences.

Being native to San Francisco, I grew up riding Muni, so I understand the importance of public transportation in underserved areas. I began my career as a transit operator where I have operated many types of transit equipment and served in several supervisory roles. I believe the [Transit] Operators are the true pillars that represents San Francisco’s melting pot.

Today, I am personally vested to help provide improved transportation choices for existing transit dependent communities, and to make walking and cycling conditions better for all.

I was a G.A.R.E. (Government Alliance for Racial Equality) participant and Cohort from 2017 – 2018, which afforded me the opportunity to identify issues with a racial equality lens and implement real solutions, and methodologies to resolve the transportation problems in underserved communities.

To sum it up, as a Black professional in public transportation, I feel that I stand on a great foundation. From my vantage point as a [Transit] Operator, I know firsthand what being underserved looks like and most importantly, feels like. I never thought it was possible to be sitting here today but now that I’m here, I feel it’s my duty and responsibility to help close those gaps, reach back to assist others by improving the customer experience of our daily ridership, and providing equitable access to opportunities.

CELEBRATING LUNAR NEW YEAR OF THE TIGER: UPCOMING COMMUNITY EVENTS

Dumpling Adventure with Kristina Cho

Thursday, Feb. 24 | 6:30PM | SF Asian Art Museum

Kristina Cho is a first-generation Chinese American who grew up in Cleveland, Ohio, and spent a lot of her childhood at her family’s Chinese restaurant. As an adult, she moved to San Francisco and found a new home in the Inner Richmond neighborhood. Her food blog, Eat Cho Food, began as a creative outlet that eventually grew to a point where she quit her job in architecture to pursue cooking and recipe development full-time. Kristina’s first cookbook, “Mooncakes & Milk Bread,” is a joyful celebration of Chinese culture and the bakeries that bring a little sweetness to Chinatowns across the country.

Celebrating Lunar New Year: Chinese New Year Parade

Saturday, Feb. 19 | 5PM – 8PM | Chinatown, San Francisco

Named one of the top ten Parades in the world by International Festivals & Events Association, the Alaska Airlines Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco is one of the few remaining night illuminated parades in North America and the biggest parade celebrating the Lunar New Year outside of Asia.
EVENT RECAP: HOW DO YOU IDENTIFY?

On Friday, February 11, the Office of Racial Equity and Belonging (OREB) concluded part two of How Do You Identify? Black People Are More Than A Monolith. The commemorative, Black History Month discussion was hosted at Potrero Division, and engaged more than 45 staff from multiple teams. Click the photo to the right to view a recording of the first event in the series.

The Black History Month event hosted at Potrero Division featured four guest speakers—Chair Gwyneth Borden (MTA Board of Directors), Harun David (Streets Division, Proof of Payment), Edward Lampkin (Streets Division, Livable Streets) and Josephine Ayankoya (Office of Racial Equity and Belonging). The panelists and audience discussed Black identity and connections in the African Diaspora. Unity and self-identification were prominent themes in both discussions.

Special thanks to Potrero Division for hosting the event, our guest speakers for sharing their unique perspectives and the many teams who supported the planning, promotion and implementation of the event.

The How Do You Identify discussion series will continue throughout the 2022 calendar year. We hope to see you at future cultural commemoration and staff belonging events! If you are interested in speaking for any of the upcoming How Do You Identify discussions, please email equity@sfmta.com.

CELEBRATING BLACK STAFF AT THE SFMTA

Maisha Johnson
Receiver
Transit, Potrero Division

What do you love about being Black?

"I’m extremely proud to be a African American woman because we are one race that stands united in times of praise and struggles. We make a huge standout when it’s important and we stand together, cry together and protest."

Theresa King Sanders
Transit Operator
Transit, Kirkland Division

What does it mean to be a Black professional in transportation?

"I love being a strong, proud African American woman, 33 years of being with Muni. Now, SFMTA has helped me to become a leader and gain the respect of others. I wouldn’t have it any other way."

Pamela Johnson
Public Relations and Events Manager
Communications and Marketing Division

What do you love about being Black?

"What I love about being Black is the strength of our ancestors, the courage of our African American leaders, and having a direct lineage to the first people on the planet."

Andre Clark
Transit Operator
Potrero Division

What does it mean to be a Black professional in transportation?

"I remember reading a story about the first Black bus driver in Bristol, U.K in the 1960’s. This story inspired me to be the best Transit Operator I can be and to help others along the path and to be a team player. I never forget those who paved the way for me and others, to be the positive role model for future Transit Operators."

VISIT SFMTA.COM/EQUITY TO EXPLORE THE OREB WEBSITE

The Office of Racial Equity and Belonging website is now live! The website is designed to provide updates on equity work at the SFMTA, such as the Racial Equity Action Plan. The website is also a resource for current staff, MTA stakeholders and community members.

In addition to outlining the structure and function of our office, the website will provide information about training, professional development and career opportunities; support programs for underserved communities; and the agency’s equity commitments and progress toward meeting those commitments.

Check out the website at SFMTA.com/Equity!
SAN FRANCISCO FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM: APPLICATION NOW OPEN!

The application for the next cohort of San Francisco Fellows is now open!
